“The New Politics of Sustainable Development”

Achieving sustainable development requires new strategies for national policy making and international cooperation. Public investments must be increased around the world and new long-term planning and financing mechanisms will be necessary to support the increase in public investments. Cooperation with neighboring countries and globally are more urgent than ever. All countries must make concerted efforts to reduce geopolitical tensions and military spending, with today's military spending redirected towards sustainable development.

Jeffrey Sachs is a renowned figure who holds multiple positions, including being a University Professor and Director of the Center for Sustainable Development at Columbia University. He has served as President of the UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network and Co-Chair of the Council of Engineers for the Energy Transition.
